The Loganian Library.

THIS valuable collection, consisting principally of books in the learned languages, was begun by the late JAMES LOGAN, whose enlarged mind induced him to provide for extending to others the means of those pursuits he had himself successfully cultivated. With this view, he built a suitable house for the reception of a library; and, by deed, vested it (with the books he had collected, and certain rents for the purpose of increasing their number and supporting a Librarian) in Trustees, for the use of the public, forever; this deed he afterwards cancelled, and prepared, but did not live to execute, another, in which some alteration was made in the funds and regulations. After he died, his children and residuary legatees conveyed the whole estate, intended by him, to Trustees, who caused the books, amounting to more than two thousand volumes, to be arranged in the building prepared for their reception, and a catalogue of them to be printed.

About one thousand three hundred volumes, collected by the late Dr. WILLIAM LOGAN, of Bristol, and WILLIAM LOGAN, of Philadelphia, have since been devised to the institution, by the latter gentleman, who acted acted as Librarian. After his death, in 1776, the library remained unopened during several years, until the Legislature of Pennsylvania, at the request of JAMES LOGAN, the only surviving Trustee, passed the act for annexing the Loganian Library to that belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia; which act constitutes the Directors of that Company, for the time being, Trustees, together with the eldest male heir of the late JAMES LOGAN, and two other gentlemen, to be, by such heir, appointed. Since which the house, built by JAMES LOGAN, has been sold, and a handsome addition made to the Philadelphia Library for keeping the books of the Loganian Library, which was opened on the first of May, 1794, for the benefit of the citizens, agreeably to the intentions of the donor, and pursuant to the directions of the act of Assembly.

An Act for annexing the Loganian Library to the Library belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS James Logan, formerly of Preamble Stenton, in the county of Philadelphia, Esquire, influenced by the patriotic desire of extending the benefits of learning among his fellow citizens, by deed, bearing date the eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and forty-five, conveyed to certain trustees, therein named, a lot of ground, situate on the west side of Sixth-street, in the city of Philadelphia, between Chefnut and Walnut-streets, with the building thereon erected, and a large and valuable collection of books, for the use of the inhabitants of the city of Philadelphia; and for the support of the said institution, by the same deed, he vested in the said trustees certain rents charge therein described, and reserved to himself the right of altering or cancelling the said deed; and afterwards proposing to settle other rents charge, and appoint other trustees for the same purposes, he cancelled the said deed, and partly prepared another, which he did not live to complete; and by his last will and testament, bearing date the twenty-fifth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and forty-nine, the said James Logan reserved from his residuary estate, and devised the two rents charge thereafter mentioned, declaring them to be intended for the use of the said institution; and since his death, William Logan and James Logan, sons of James Logan aforesaid, John Smith and Hannah his wife, the said Hannah Smith being the surviving daughter of James Logan, the elder, and the said William Logan

Preamble. Logan, James Logan and John Smith, being the surviving executors of his last will and testament, induced by the same laudable motives, and desirous of carrying the intention of their father into effect, by deed, bearing date the twenty-eighth day of August, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty-four, between the said parties, on the one part, and Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, of the other part, conveyed to, and vested in, the said Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, their heirs and assigns, to the use of the said William Logan, James Logan, John Smith, Israel Pemberton, junior, William Allen, Richard Peters, and Benjamin Franklin, their heirs and assigns for ever, in trust for the purposes hereafter mentioned, the messuage and lot of ground before mentioned, situate on the west side of Sixth-street, between Chestnut and Walnut-streets, in the city of Philadelphia, in the said deed particularly described, with all and singular the books therein deposited, according to the catalogue thereof, the uses and trusts of which settlement were in substance as follow: that is to say, " That there should be a perpetual succession of trustees, part of whom should be of the descendants of the said James Logan, the elder, preferring the male line to the female, as long as any of his descendants remained; that one of his male descendants, taken in priority of birth, and preferring the male line to the female line, should be Librarian of the said public Library, with a power of employing deputies; that the library should be opened for the public use of the citizens, and that books might be borrowed thereout, under certain restrictions;" and for supporting the expence of the institution, and and enlarging the collection by the purchase of other books, from time to time, the said parties of the first part, by the same deed conveyed to the said parties of the second part, to the use aforesaid, on the trusts aforesaid, the said rents charge, devised in the said last will and testament of the said James Logan, the elder, to wit, a certain rent charge of twenty-one pounds sterling per annum, with clauses of increase, at stated periods, according to the valuation of disinterested men, issuing out of a certain tract of land, situate in Solebury township, Bucks county, containing three hundred and ninety-six acres and three quarters of an acre, which by deed, dated the first day of May, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty, was granted by the said James Logan, the elder, to Jonathan Ingham, in fee simple, and also a certain rent charge of ten pounds sterling per annum, with the like clauses of increase, issuing out of a certain other tract of land in the same township and county, containing two hundred acres, which by deed, dated the twenty-sixth day of May, in the year one thousand seven hundred and fifty, was granted by the said James Logan, the elder, to Jacob Dean, in fee simple: And whereas the said library was thereupon opened for public use, according to the provisions in the said settlement contained; but since the death of the said William Logan, who was the first Librarian, the avocations of the other trustees, the situation of public affairs, and other causes, have suspended the provisions of this liberal institution, although the books are found, upon examination, to be in good condition: and whereas an addition has been made to the said collection, for the same purposes, of near one thousand volumes, by the will of the said William Logan, and the whole now consists of

Preambles

INTRODUCTION.

THE Books described in the following Catalogue, were part of the Library of the late WILLIAM MACKENZIE, Esq. of Philadelphia, the city of his birth and residence, during a life extended beyond seventy years, and almost exclusively devoted to literary pursuits.

He was born on the 23d of July, 1758, received his education at the College and Academy of Philadelphia, and then entered the compting house of the late JOHN ROSS, Esquire, one of the most eminent Merchants of that City; where he acquired an accurate and extensive knowledge of mercantile affairs, with reputation to himself and the esteem of that highly respectable gentleman, but being easy in his circumstances, and fond of reading and retirement, he indulged himself in literary pursuits, and gradually accumulated the collection of rare and valuable books, now bequeathed to the Philadelphia and Loganian Libraries, with many others, the greater part of which have since been purchased from his Executors for those Institutions.

The Reverend Doctor JAMES ABERCROMBIE, who was one of his few intimate friends, in speaking of him, says "he believes he never had an enemy, at least, from the purity of his principles and correctness of his conduct, I am sure he never deserved one."

His constitution, though vigorous, was not robust, his manners plain and conciliatory, his hand and his purse were ever open and ready to relieve individual and domestic distress, and contribute to public requisitions; in short, in every relation which he bore to society, he exhibited a truly estimable and exemplary character, as a son, dutiful, affectionate and attentive; as a man, benevolent, liberal, and honest; as a citizen, patriotic, generous, and amiable; as a friend, firm, sincere, and candid; as a companion, intelligent, entertaining, and courteous. He was an accomplished Belles Lettres and classical scholar, and the tenor of his life was an uniform illustration of his principles and the benevolence of his heart; he died on the 30th of July, 1828, having by his last will and testament made the following bequests; on carrying which into effect and disposing of his remaining books, his Executors, THOMAS MITCHELL, GEORGE S. SAVERY, and JUDAH DOBSON, have manifested the same liberality and regard to the two Institutions, which influenced the testator in making those bequests. They are contained in the following Extract from his will, viz:—

“I give and bequeath to the Library Company of Philadelphia, their successors and assigns forever, five hundred volumes to be chosen by the Directors thereof from my English books, published since the beginning of the eighteenth century; and I give and bequeath to the Library Company of Philadelphia aforesaid, their successors and assigns forever, in trust for the increase of the Loganian Library, and subject to the direction of the trustees thereof, all my books printed before the beginning of the eighteenth century, and eight hundred volumes more to be chosen by the said trustees from my French books, and Latin books, printed since the beginning of the eighteenth century.
